

An illustration featuring two women against a background of flowing, wavy lines in shades of orange, yellow, and teal. The woman at the top, with long brown hair and wearing an orange shirt, is shown from the chest up, reaching her right arm out towards the right. The woman at the bottom, with dark hair and wearing a teal shirt, is shown from the chest up, reaching her left arm out towards the left. Their hands are positioned as if they are about to meet in the center. The overall mood is one of hope and unity.

Alone we can do so little;
together we can
do so much.

– Helen Keller